06/12 (F) - The Reformation in London

Begin your day at Westminster Abbey. This famous church is where the Westminster Confession of Faith was written and is the location of the graves of many of the world's most famous people, including many of the early Kings and Queens of England. Continue to St. James Palace, where the flames of England's Reformation found a voice in the desire for Henry VIII to have a male heir to the throne. We'll then head to Bunhill Fields Cemetery, known as the "Cemetery of Puritan England." Walking through the cemetery, you will see the graves of John Bunyan - author of Pilgrim's Progress, Isaac Watts - the noted hymn writer, Daniel Defoe - author of Robinson Crusoe, Susannah Wesley-mother of John and Charles Wesley, as well as members of the Cromwell family. The writer John Milton lived in Bunhill Row on the west side of the cemetery from 1662 until his death in 1674. Across the street, you will visit the Wesley Church located at the Wesley House and Museum and the location of his gravesite. The chapel has been the "Mother Church of Methodism" since the 18th century. Walk the grounds of the Church of St. Giles without Cripplegate. The shell of the church dates back to the 1500's, and reformers such as John Foxe, Robert Crowley, Oliver Cromwell, and later notables such as John Milton, John Bunyan, and Daniel Defoe are connected with this church that was outside London in their day.
